

We offer to publish contributions on the open access database Religion and Urbanity Online (<https://doi.org/10.1515/urbrel>). In order to strengthen comparative and entangled perspectives, we seek to foster projects of co-authorship in addition to welcoming individual contributions.

The conference is part of the DFG-funded Humanities Centre for Advanced Studies Religion and Urbanity: Reciprocal Formations (FOR 2779), based at the Max Weber Centre at the University of Erfurt, Germany.

URBREL ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Urbanities:
History, Concept, Uses

16 – 18 November 2022 | Schloss Ettersburg, Weimar

Urbanity: History, Concept, Uses

Conveners: Susanne Rau & Sara Keller, Organiser: Klara-Maeve O'Reilly

Looking at the urban within a large geographical and historical framework, members of the research group "Religion and Urbanity" have observed a great diversity of urban life, both on a material level and on the level of the subjective experience. They have also noted the amplitude of factors contributing to the shaping of the urban, its changes and its varying perceptions: ecological factors and atmospheres are essential, as are monumental and changing sceneries, variable and multi-layered spaces, ideas, aspirations and attitudes, as well as narratives and city images. Moreover, the subjective character of urbanity invites to name audiences and to differentiate actors: urban experiences are shaped by the identity of individuals and groups, their ethnic, social and religious background, their dreams, agendas and values. Our main interest lies in grasping and analysing the essential contribution of religion to this complex and intertwined formation of urbanity (and vice versa). In other words, our perspective on urbanity and the urban is structured by the prism of the religious.
